This Week in Health Tech

HIStalk's 5 Top Stories in 60 Seconds

June 11, 2025

#1 Stanford Develops ChatEHR

💡 What Happened:

Stanford pilots an AI chatbot that lets providers "chat" with a patient's EHR.

🤔 Why It Matters:

The homegrown AI tool could potentially save clinicians from spending time on gathering patient information from within the EHR, freeing them up for more top-of-license activities.

#2 Omada Health Makes Its Stock Market Debut

💡 What Happened:

Omada Health's IPO raises $150 million, earning a $1 billion valuation.

🤯 Why It Matters:

Analysts tout the recent IPOs of Omada Health and Hinge Health as signs of a rebounding digital health market.

#3 Interlock Takes Credit for Kettering Hack

💡 What Happened:

Interlock claims responsibility for the Kettering Health ransomware attack.

🫢 Why It Matters:

The group says it stole 940 gigabytes of data from Kettering, which has returned to nearly normal levels of patient care and IT system functionality.

#4 NextGen Announces New Investor, CEO

💡 What Happened:

Madison Dearborn becomes an owner of NextGen, which will replace its CEO.

🤯 Why It Matters:

Madison Dearborn will share management of the company with Thoma Bravo, which took NextGen private in 2023.

#5 Mayo Clinic to Invest in Hellocare.ai

💡 What Happened:

Mayo Clinic will invest in and partner with Hellocare.ai.

🤔 Why It Matters:

The companies will focus on developing ambient clinical AI.

What's Your Take?

Follow for more weekly news recaps.

Read HIStalk for details and breaking news.

HIStalk

HEALTHCARE IT NEWS & OPINION